

UISZ Community Summary – Week 15

INTRO

Last Friday we held our annual UISZ Winter Concert and Arts Fair which was a great success - with many parents coming to see their children perform on stage. Here are a few photos documenting the performances.

Message from Ms Ha

In K3/Year 1 class, we have just started our new UOI How the World Works. The students have started their exploration into different types of materials. In class, we have created an inquiry station where students can explore and sort different items (changed daily) into material groups. This station has provided the opportunity for our younger learners to experience and feel different types of material to understand their properties.

Message from Ms. Yolanda

What is Chinese Sugar Painting? What kind of people will make this traditional craftsmanship their occupation? How do Chinese artists use sugar to paint pictures? Recently, students of Chinese language acquisition year 7 inquired about the Chinese Sugar Painting. And yes! they've created their own works! Let's watch this video and applaud!

Primary camping: Week Without Walls (WWW)

Reporter: Teddy Kim Y5

This news story is about a camp called Week Without Walls for primary students to explore. The Primary Y4 - Y6 is going on a camping trip called 'Week without walls' to the destination of Cliff Haus in Yingde. Ms. Jennifer who I interviewed says we are going to stay there over 3 days.

Last time, because of COVID 19, the camp that was planned got cancelled. And that's why our school is planning to go on a camp this year. The meaning of 'Week Without Walls' is that if we are inside a classroom there are walls around. But if we explore outside - not at school - there are no walls. And the reason the school is on a camp is because this camping was our school's tradition, and we can have fun and enjoy camping. The activities we are going to do are swimming, climbing walls, trust activities, and other fun activities. The materials we can bring are a phone and camera to take photos about our adventure.

Winter is coming!
